The Roman Pharos, as well as the remains of a very ancient church, are seen here on the highest part of the Castle Hill: the walls of this church, partly constructed with Roman tiles, are dilapidated, and the roof is entirely destroyed. Southward of the church is the present burial-ground of the garrison. Near the edge of the cliff is a piece of brass ordnance, usually called Queen Elizabeth s Pocket Pistol. It is twenty-four feet long, and carries a twelve-pound shot, but is now unfit for use. This cannon was cast at Utrecht in 1514: upon it are several devices, and some old Dutch lines, which have been thus translated: -- O'er hill and dale, I throw my ball; Breaker, my name, of mound and wall. Dover, in the bathing season, has become a very favourite summer residence, which has led...
